OUSTER PLOT REPORTED

Campaign Against Military
Chief Said To Grow Out
Of Yankee Defense

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20—Important congressional authorities are considering today the propriety of a public inquiry into charges that "powerful interests" are trying to oust Gen. George C. Marshall as army chief of staff because they disagree with his strategy for global warfare.

Some Capitol Hill leaders would like to learn whether the military strategy of the United States and the fate of its armies are to be decided by generals and admirals or by a group of civilian advisers to the President.

The issue was raised by the authoritative Army and Navy Journal, which charged that "General Marshall has come into conflict with powerful interests which would like to eliminate him from the Washington picture and place in his stead an officer more amenable to their will." The Journal further stated that the ouster plot contemplated transfer of Marshall to command of the European theatre of operations.

The move to oust Marshall had its inception months ago. Last May, International News Service was informed by a high government official that some of the President's intimate civilian advisers were seeking to transfer Marshall to a less important post because he was urging a heavier diversion of U. S. troops, equipment and supplies to the war against Japan.

The civilian advisers were quoted as demanding a complete concentration of American power against Germany and Italy, with only a minor effort against Japan.

Refused British

It is known in Washington that Marshall has on occasion refused British requests for supplies. One of his famous sayings is: "They are not going to get a single gun from me if that gun will save an American boy's life."

One of the amazing phases of the ouster move is an authenticated report that Prime Minister Winston Churchill, of Great Britain, is opposed to it. An authoritative source told International News Service that Churchill has only the greatest admiration for Marshall's sagacity and his constant defense of American strategy.

One remark, attributed to Churchill is: "I'd like to have that man on my team."

BULLETIN
WASHINGTON, Sept. 20—Gen. George C. Marshall, army chief of staff, told congress today that if legislation is enacted preventing the drafting of fathers, it will do more damage to the war's progress than could be done by the Germans and Japanese.

"If you cut us now, you hurt us more than the Germans or Japanese," was the general's blunt statement.

The staff chief also informed congress that huge numbers of American ground forces will soon go into action.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20—Gen. George C. Marshall, army chief of staff, and Admiral Ernest J. King, commander-in-chief of the United States fleet, went before a joint session of senate and house military affairs committees today to oppose draft deferment for fathers.

Administration leaders expected the nation's top officers to clinch the case against the Wheeler deferment bill at a time when many senators frankly voice doubts as to how they will vote.

The hearing will be followed by debate opening tomorrow in the senate. A vote may come by Thursday night.

Gen. Marshall reiterated declarations of his subordinates that the army's plan for smashing the Axis will be upset unless the army can receive 700,000 draftees by January 1.

Admiral King, who already has warned that passage of the Wheeler bill will interfere with the grand strategy of the war, was called to repeat the statement orally.

The committees, in addition, will hear Mayor F. H. LaGuardia of New York explain his attack on the "unimaginative administration" of Selective Service and may also hear Bernard M. Baruch on manpower.

Administration leaders believe that the senate will reject the Wheeler bill decisively, despite the expressed doubts of many members over the necessity of drafting 446,000 fathers by January 1.

"I think the bill will be defeated," said Sen. Hatch (D) N. M. Hatch's son, who is a father, is in the army.

"From what I have gathered the opposition to the Wheeler bill has gained, not particularly because of the hearings but because of the general war situation," said Sen. Bridges (R) N. H.

ITALIAN RAIL WORKERS STRIKE TO HINDER HUNS

LONDON, Sept. 20—All Italian railwaymen today were reported to have gone on strike, necessitating operation of all communications in the country by German occupation authorities.

The Algiers radio said that opposition to the German forces in Tunis still continues, with street battles flaring continually. Before the Nazis reached the city, arms from the Royal arsenal were distributed among the people and "citizens guard."

All of central Italy is a vast no-man's-land with a few points controlled by the Germans, said the broadcast. Even in these areas disorder reigns, while in northern Italy Nazi Field Marshal Erwin Rommel has been forced to issue further threats against the native population. Rommel has ordered trial of Italian offenders by German military courts, Algiers reported.

Politicos Eye Legion Convention For Tips On National Thought

OMAHA, Neb., Sept. 20—American Legionnaires gathering in Omaha for the opening of their national convention tomorrow made plans today to increase their membership to six million to make the Legion one of the most potent political influences in the United States.

National politicians, particularly some Republican governors mentioned as possible GOP presidential candidates, were watching the gathering closely. They hoped to obtain from it some indication of what the voters of the nation are thinking on the eve of the presidential campaign next year.

The meeting, a silver jubilee convention, was regarded as the most important of its kind in history. The Legion, already soundly organized with 1,160,000 members, will make detailed plans to organize veterans of World War II into its ranks after the present war ends.

The Legion, at its Kansas City convention last year, opened up its ranks to the soldiers of this war. Since that time, between 40,000 and 50,000 youths holding honorable discharges from the Army and Navy because of wounds and other causes have been given membership.

Open Membership
Legion leaders saw in the present war a chance to recruit millions of new members to carry on the fight for free American enterprise that is now shaping up. Detailed plans will be worked out for inaugurating and sustaining a membership drive to sign up the young veterans of this war.

This year's convention of the Legion took on widespread political ramifications despite itself. Two things were foremost. They were the future of the Legion itself and post-war problems. One inescapably was tied in with the other.

Uniquely, it was here in Omaha in 1925 that the American Legion at its convention then found itself at its lowest ebb. Then, membership had dwindled to less than 600,000, the organization was beginning to crack at the seams. But a vigorous drive brought reported.

Of Hitting Power

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20—The heavy American raid on Japanese bases in the Gilbert islands over the week end showed today the rising strength of the United States navy which now has the mightiest fleet in history and the most powerful naval air force in the world.

The "strong" U. S. naval force that blasted bases on Tarawa island in the north Gilberts and Nauru island, west of the Gilberts, was presumed to have been composed of dive and torpedo bombers brought to within striking distance of the bases by American plane carriers.

Previously, bases in this enemy-dominated area of the Pacific were raided by land-based army bombers from Guadalcanal.

Disclosure of the naval raid on the Gilberts came as the navy department reported that this country now has 14,072 naval vessels, including 613 warships and more than 18,000 naval planes.

Tremendous Strength

The tremendous strength of America's sea arm was disclosed in a detailed report on construction of naval ships, planes and shore facilities during the 36 months between July 1, 1940 and July 1, 1943.

During that time, the navy completed 15,376 new ships of all types, costing more than five billion dollars, and representing a total of 2,200,000 tons; added 23,000 planes to its air arm, and built shore facilities costing $6,500,000. The present fleet totals nearly five million tons, including 2,217,952 tons of warships.

At the beginning of the emergency in mid-1940, the American fleet consisted of only 1,076 ships, including 383 warships, and only 1,744 planes. Since then the navy has built 15,567 planes and acquired 7,800 for the army. A total of 6,800 planes has been lost in action or written off as obsolete and 2,100 have been transferred to other agencies.

Has No Equal

The navy declared that "the phenomenal expansion of U. S. navy ship-building is unequalled in history," and said that the production of ships and planes still "moves upward."

FRANK FAY'S WIT AVERTS PANIC IN THEATRE FIRE

NEW YORK, Sept. 20—The spontaneous wit of Actor Frank Fay was credited today with averting a panic during a minor fire at the Shubert theatre yesterday.

Fay took the stage when scores of the 1400 persons in the matinee audience began to walk out as smoke started to fill the second balcony and water from a fire hose sprayed some of the "customers."

"Pay no attention to it," Fay quipped. "Jobs are too hard to get these days to let anything interfere with this one."

The audience was reassured and finally quit the theatre in an orderly manner when firemen instructed them to leave. Damage from the fire was limited to coverings on pipes and wires and the evening performance went on as scheduled.

100 Trapped Americans Use Ammunition, Then Hurl Rocks and Cans

WITH THE U. S. FIFTH ARMY, Sept. 16—(Delayed)—Their ammunition gone, 30 survivors of a force of 100 trapped Americans threw rocks, ammunition clips and even cans of food rations at the Germans as they fought their way back to our lines after being surrounded by the enemy.

Two days after the Americans landed, this battalion was assigned to seize a town on high ground 10 miles from the Salerno beachhead. For two days the Americans were pinned in the town as the Nazis counter-attacked with strong infantry forces supported by tanks and a powerful bombardment from 88's.

A German prisoner interpreted German radioed orders so the Americans knew what to expect. "The last attack was really something," Lieut. Louis N. Quast of St. Paul, Minn., related. "They got two machineguns into positions flanking the building and then the infantry came at us time after time."

"By this time there were only 30 men still able to fight back and they fought with everything—including rocks and cans of rations in order to conserve ammunition for the moment when they could attempt a break. They left the citadel only under orders and only when all ammunition was exhausted."

"What bothers the boys most is that they had to leave their wounded behind."

BUS AND TRAIN CRASH FATAL TO SEVEN PROBED

JOHNSTOWN CITY, ILL., Sept. 20—An inquest was scheduled today into a Greyhound bus-Missouri Pacific train crash in which seven persons were killed and 53 injured.

The crash occurred on a grade crossing two miles south of Johnstown City, Ill., as the bus, with every seat filled and passengers standing in the aisles, traveled downhill.

The bus plowed into the first car of the train, powered by a diesel engine which pulled two cars. The first car toppled over as the bus rammed it. The second car was derailed but remained upright. The train was bound from Marion, Ill., to St. Louis.

The bus cab was demolished. All except four of the injured were passengers in the bus.

Bus passengers told investigating officials that the brakes appeared to fail after the driver had applied them.

HAMMER SLAYER FARM BOY FACES DEATH SENTENCE

CELINA, O., Sept. 20—Louis Hand, 17-year-old farm hand, faced a mandatory death sentence today. He was found guilty late Saturday of murder in the first degree in the "hammer slaying" of Richard Stober, 6.

The jury of eight men and four women, in returning the guilty verdict, failed to recommend mercy, making the death sentence mandatory. Judge Raymond A. Younger, who heard the case in common pleas court, said he would defer sentencing Hand until later in the week to give counsel an opportunity to file appeal motions.

During the trial it was brought out that Hand beat Richard, son of Mr. and Mrs. Rufus Stober, to death with a hammer. Hand said the boy teased him for not taking proper care of the farm machinery, Judge Younger said. The crime took place last July 4 on the Stober farm where Hand was employed.

BULLETIN
LONDON, Sept. 20—The Swiss radio today announced that the Germans have closed the Italo-Swiss frontier. The report was carried by Reuter news agency, which said the order became effective at 10:30.

By International News Service
Lieut. Gen. Mark W. Clark's U. S. Fifth Army today held all heights dominating the Sorrento peninsula after extending its bridgehead 15 miles northwest of Salerno.

On the Italian east coast, British troops drove 30 miles northwest from the Taranto naval base to seize Gioja, site of an important enemy airbase and a rail junction on the Taranto-Bari route skirting the Adriatic coast.

Both Allied headquarters in North Africa and the German propaganda agency announced that German troops had completed their evacuation of the Mediterranean island of Sardinia. The Nazis fled across a seven-mile stretch of water to Corsica, where fighting already was reported to have broken out between Italo-French forces and the German occupation troops.

Resistance Weakening

Weakening German resistance in the Salerno sector indicated the Nazis were withdrawing their troops to establish a west-to-east line shielding Naples from the South, fearing an imminent push by the combined Fifth and Eighth armies. The Cairo radio declared that the Eighth army now is in position and "the battle for Naples is expected to start at any moment."

Smolensk and Kiev—the German army's two biggest remaining bastions in Russia—meanwhile were under grave threat in the wake of a record Red Army advance which in 24 hours overwhelmed the last Nazi strongpoints east of the Dnieper and liberated 1,200 communities.

The Soviets plunged forward on nine separate fronts strung along a 700-mile battlefield after smashing within 24 miles of the Nazi Dnieper defense at one point, within 29 miles of Smolensk and within 35 miles of the middle Dnieper key base of Kiev.

Biggest Nazi Bastions In Russia Threatened By Surging Reds

BULLETIN LONDON, Sept. 20—The Axis radio reported today that Analfi, Italian seaport midway between Salerno and Sorrento, is in Allied hands.

BULLETIN LONDON, Sept. 20—The Swiss radio today announced that the Germans have closed the Italo-Swiss frontier. The report was carried by Reuter news agency, which said the order became effective at 10:30.

By International News Service Lieut. Gen. Mark W. Clark's U. S. Fifth Army today held all heights dominating the Sorrento peninsula after extending its bridgehead 15 miles northwest of Salerno.

On the Italian east coast, British troops drove 30 miles northwest from the Taranto naval base to seize Gioja, site of an important enemy airbase and a rail junction on the Taranto-Bari route skirting the Adriatic coast.

Both Allied headquarters in North Africa and the German propaganda agency announced that German troops had completed their evacuation of the Mediterranean island of Sardinia. The Nazis fled across a seven-mile stretch of water to Corsica, where fighting already was reported to have broken out between Italo-French forces and the German occupation troops.

Resistance Weakening

Weakening German resistance in the Salerno sector indicated the Nazis were withdrawing their troops to establish a west-to-east line shielding Naples from the South, fearing an imminent push by the combined Fifth and Eighth armies. The Cairo radio declared that the Eighth army now is in position and "the battle for Naples is expected to start at any moment."

Smolensk and Kiev—the German army's two biggest remaining bastions in Russia—meanwhile were under grave threat in the wake of a record Red Army advance which in 24 hours overwhelmed the last Nazi strongpoints east of the Dnieper and liberated 1,200 communities.

The Soviets plunged forward on nine separate fronts strung along a 700-mile battlefield after smashing within 24 miles of the Nazi Dnieper defense at one point, within 29 miles of the middle Dnieper key base of Kiev.

Stalin Joyful

JAPS WARNED AGAINST NEW YANKEE PLANES

NEW YORK, Sept. 20—A warning that the United States is turning out new, improved-type warplanes was Japanese Communications Minister Ken Terashima's message to his countrymen today in a Tokyo radio address commemorating Japan's fourth annual Aviation Day.

He discounted as "propaganda" reports that America will produce 125,000 warplanes this year, but warned of "precious sacrifices" when "the enemy begins to rely on their power of numbers."

The Tokyo broadcast was reported to the OWI.

paved the way for a further Soviet advance toward the Polish border.

Stalin announced Russian capture of Yartsevo, big railroad junction 29 miles northeast of Smolensk. But the Soviet premier stressed the importance of the simultaneous seizure of Dukhoushina, 10 miles northeast of Yartsevo, which he called "the most important center of resistance on the road to Smolensk." Stalin declared that with the capture of Dukhoushina, "the gate to Smolensk has been broken open."

In the Ukraine, powerful Russian columns overran key strongholds guarding Kiev at Prilui, Lubni and Biryatin. Spearheads of these forces pushed still farther and reached Zhabereh, only 24 miles from the Dnieper, and Anisovo, 30 miles east of the Nazi Dnieper line.

German forces still in the Khar-kov salient were threatened with annihilation by the Russian capture of the big rail junction of Krasnograd.

Take Strategic Pass

At the extreme southern end of the front, a Soviet column occupied the strategic Vorzhe Vorot pass, eight miles west of the recaptured Black sea naval base of Novorossisk. Seizure of the pass blocked the German Kuban delta retreat route to the port of Anapa, 17 miles to the west.

The Tokyo radio version of the American week end attack on Jap-held islands in the Gilbert group in the Pacific said "more than 200" U. S. navy carrier-based planes carried out the assault.

Tokyo identified the targets as Tarawa, Makin and Nauru islands and said 22 American planes were shot down.

The Navy department at Washington did not immediately disclose any further details than were contained in its original communiqué. That announcement mentioned only Tarawa and Nauru and did not say whether the attacking force was composed of planes, surface vessels or both.

Jap Bases Pulverized

Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters in the southwest Pacific reported four more pulverizing aerial assaults on the vital Ballale and Kahili airdromes on Jap-held Bougainville island in the Solomons. In one of the assaults, 14 of 60 intercepting enemy planes were shot down over Ballale.

The increasingly heavy aerial bombardment of enemy bases in the Bougainville area appears to indicate a forthcoming new push northward from newly-won Allied bases in the central Solomons. Allied seizure of Bougainville would pose a formidable threat to the big Jap base at Rabaul, New Britain. Recent capture of Lae and Salamaua in New Guinea already menaces Rabaul, last major enemy base immediately north of Australia.

WIFE OF JOHN JOHNSON DIES IN RURAL HOME

Mrs. Susie Johnson, 73, wife of John Johnson, died Monday at 5:30 a. m. at her home in Walnut township. Mrs. Johnson was a native of Pickaway county, born May 10, 1870, a daughter of George and Catherine Wells Ethington.

Survivors include the husband; five children, Harold and Cecil of Ashville; Charles of Lithopolis; Ralph of the home, and Mrs. Edna Brady of Groveport, in addition to four sisters, Mrs. Zelma Glick, Ashville; Mrs. Laura Noggle, Westerville; Mrs. Sadie Shisler and Miss Ruth Ethington, Columbus.

Funeral services will be conducted Wednesday at 2 p. m. at the home with burial in Reber Hill cemetery by E. F. Schlegel, Ashville.

It was not until the early '30's, however, that the Legion found that it could wield a strong voice in the political and even economic life of the nation. It fought for the soldier's bonus which the soldiers received in 1931.

Dominant Position

Again the Legion is in a dominant position. The resolutions on post-war programs that will be approved by the 1,500 delegates at the three-day convention will become straws indicating which way the political winds are blowing.

It was almost certain that some of the resolutions will collide with some phases of the post-war plans of President Roosevelt. The President made plans to come to this Republican stronghold to deliver a major speech at the convention, but at the latest word these plans have been canceled.

Resolutions to be adopted, it was predicted, will include one demanding that free enterprise and private capital be given full opportunity to create new jobs for soldiers of this war once they are mustered out of the army.

Regimentation Hit

As worded now, it will also warn against government regimentation in the guise of building up post-war employment.

Other resolutions will call for this country to maintain a seven-seas navy after the war, urge universal military training, call for temporary alliances, if necessary, to put down future wars, but possibly attack any proposals to use American boys and arms to maintain an international police force.

Many governors of states, who are legionnaires, are expected to put in an appearance. The Legion includes 29 governors among its members. Eighteen of the 29 are Republicans. Gov. Dwight Griswold of Nebraska, a Republican, will give a luncheon for visiting governors tomorrow, and this meeting, too, will be watched for political trends.

Among the governor-legionnaires is Gov. John Bricker of Ohio, mentioned as a GOP presidential possibility next year. Gov. Bricker will be in Lincoln, Neb., for an executive committee meeting of the national conference of governors today, and it is believed that he will visit the convention.

George S. Corwin, Worthington, paid two fines of $10 and costs each Sunday evening when he appeared before Mayor Ben H. Gordon following his arrest for speeding on Route 23. ity, International News Service can state that the other members of the United States joint chiefs of staff and of the famed combined chiefs of staff, United States and Great Britain, are opposed to Marshall's removal from their groups. This means that Admiral William D. Leahy, chief of staff to the President, Admiral Ernest J. King, Commander-in-chief of the United States fleet and chief of naval operations, and Gen. H. H. Arnold, commanding general, army air forces, are opposed to Marshall's demotion.

Like sentiments have been voiced, International News Service was informed, by Field Marshall Sir John Dill, former chief of the British imperial general staff, and Admiral Sir Percy Noble, two of the British representatives on the combined chiefs of staff.

These disclosures serve to veil in mystery the impetus given the attack on Marshall. One high administration official said Marshall's enemies are Associate Supreme Court Justice Felix Frankfurter and Undersecretary of War Robert P. Patterson. This source said Frankfurter and Patterson were trying to replace Marshall with Lieut. Gen. Brehon Somervell.

Two Columbus women required emergency treatment in Berger hospital at 10 p. m. Sunday after a two-car collision at Routes 104 and 22 west of Circleville.

Mrs. John Deibel, 368 Stuart avenue, and Mrs. Fred Langbehn, 748 Kenwick road, suffered from cuts and bruises. Both were released from the hospital after treatment.

Both women were in the car owned by Mrs. Deibel and driven by Mr. Langbehn when it collided with the car of Miss Katherine Knoll, Toledo. The Deibel automobile was going east on Route 22, while Miss Knoll's auto was moving south on Route 104.

Miss Knoll, who was accompanied by Miss Julia Sparks, told Deputy Vern Pontious she had stopped at the warning signal and had started her car again, believing she had plenty of time to cross the intersection before the approaching Deibel car reached the crossing.

Both cars were severely damaged.

Neither Miss Knoll nor Miss Sparks was hurt.

Marshall Supports Dad Draft

oppose demands of the heads of the army and navy. "If the administration defeats this bill, it is not defeating me but the families and children of America," said Wheeler.

Meantime, it was learned that a group of senators discussed a compromise plan under which drafting of fathers would be deferred 30 to 45 days, with the Selective Service being ordered to again comb the rolls in the hope of obtaining sufficient single men for the draft calls.

Bridges confirmed reports that this proposal is being seriously considered. Sen. Taft (R) Ohio, said he would offer an amendment to the Wheeler bill providing that if fathers are drafted those 30 and under should be taken first.

Some senators, including Wheeler and Sen. George (D) Ga., said the real reason for induction of fathers is to force fathers to go from non-essential to essential industries. Both condemned the indirect method of accomplishing the purpose of bolstering forces in gigantic war plants.

of comparable size and speed has never been accomplished by any other nation," the navy said. "Ability to build this huge new naval force—and to continue to build at the present rate—is one of the foundation stones of our military strategy."

"It underlies our amphibious attack in the Pacific, the Atlantic and the Mediterranean." A total of 58 warships is listed as having been lost in action. These include one battleship, four aircraft carriers, nine cruisers, 32 destroyers and 12 submarines.

Chairman Vinson (D) Ga., of the house naval affairs committee, disclosed over the week end that Japanese sea losses since Pearl Harbor total 180 warships destroyed, including three battleships and six carriers.

Emphasis on the great naval construction has been laid on hard-hitting warships, the navy turning out 333 of them in the last three years.

TWO COLUMBUS WOMEN HURT IN AUTO COLLISION

Two Columbus women required emergency treatment in Berger hospital at 10 p. m. Sunday after a two-car collision at Routes 104 and 22 west of Circleville.

Mrs. John Deibel, 368 Stuart avenue, and Mrs. Fred Langbehn, 748 Kenwick road, suffered from cuts and bruises. Both were released from the hospital after treatment.

Both women were in the car owned by Mrs. Deibel and driven by Mr. Langbehn when it collided with the car of Miss Katherine Knull, Toledo. The Deibel automobile was going east on Route 22, while Miss Knull's auto was moving south on Route 104.

Miss Knull, who was accompanied by Miss Julia Sparks, told Deputy Vern Pontious she had stopped at the warning signal and had started her car again, believing she had plenty of time to cross the intersection before the approaching Deibel car reached the crossing.

Both cars were severely damaged. Neither Miss Knull nor Miss Sparks was hurt.

MRS. MARY RHOADES, 81, DIES AT HOME OF SON

Mrs. Mary Rhoades, 81, 166 Logan street, died Sunday at 12:30 p. m. at the home of her son, John Rhoades, 888 North Court street, where she had been removed at the beginning of her illness four months ago. Mrs. Rhoades was a member for many years of Trinity Lutheran church. She was born in Pickaway township February 14, 1862.

In addition to her son, John, other survivors are a daughter, Mrs. Evelyn Childs, Merrick, Long Island, New York; two sisters, Mrs. A. C. Cook, 208 North Court street, and Mrs. John Walters, Whisler; one brother, Frank Rhoades, Pickaway township, and four grandchildren.

Funeral services will be conducted in the Defenbaugh Chapel Wednesday at 2 p. m. with the Rev. George L. Troutman officiating. Burial will be in Forest cemetery. Friends may call at the Defenbaugh Funeral home after noon on Tuesday.

TWO INJURED AS CARS HIT NEAR WILLIAMSPORT

Two Clarksburg district residents suffered injuries at 8:45 p. m. Saturday when their cars collided on the Williamsport-Chillicothe road one and one-half miles south of Williamsport.

Mrs. Mary Ann McCabe, wife of John McCabe, Clarksburg Route 1, was treated for a bruised face, and Frank Carter, also of Clarksburg Route 1, who was riding in the other car, suffered a broken nose. Mrs. Carter, driving their 1942 Studebaker sedan, suffered from shock. None of the injured required hospitalization.

—the BIG invasion days are yet to come!

ITALY has surrendered. But, we here at home must not forget for one careless minute that the road to Berlin is long and hard, and will one day be clogged with the bodies of men . . . many of them Americans.

We must keep in mind, night and day, that much blood will redden the soil of countless little Pacific Islands before we read that Japan has quit.

Meanwhile, the war goes on. And every time the watch in your pocket ticks off one second . . . the war costs $3,000.00!

Three thousand dollars a second! 265 million dollars a day! Nearly eight billion dollars a month! And there are many, many months of hard and bitter war ahead of us!

War Bonds must provide a great deal of the money your Government needs. That is why YOU must do more than buy your regular amount of War Bonds. Right now, while the 3rd War Loan is on, YOU should dig deeper . . . should buy at least one $100 War Bond EXTRA!

The attack is in full swing. At last our side is doing the attacking! And you, and we, and all of us, must "BACK THE ATTACK!"

So forget that Italy has surrendered . . . and keep in mind that Germany must be beaten . . . that Japan must be beaten . . . and that YOUR MONEY must help do it!

ENDANGERED TREASURE
HENRY E. Fritz of Pelham, N. Y., writes to the New York Times that Leonardo Da Vinci's great painting, "The Last Supper" is not painted on an interior wall of the church, but on the end-wall of the refectory of the monastery adjacent to the church of Santa Maria della Grazie near Milan, which was recently bombed.
"If the painting was discovered miraculously intact when the debris was cleared away, the bomb must have struck the church, whose cupola and choir were designed by the great Italian Renaissance architect, Bramante, and the debris fallen on the refectory. The picture had lived through many vicissitudes. It has survived floods and neglect. It was pelted with stones by French dragoons under Louis XII, who used the refectory as a barracks in 1499."
This is merely one sample of what is happening under the bombs of modern war. Every lover of art, of history, of religion will hope that this great painting may be spared once more. But other treasures have already gone and more will go.
If choice is necessary, doubtless the freedom of mankind is worth the loss of many beautiful creations of the past. But wiser people than the Germans, who started this war, would have realized that had they kept the peace, the glories of the past, of the present and those to be created in the future could have been preserved, and freedom, too, and prosperity besides, if they had gone about securing these aims in the right way.

LONGEVITY
THE secret of long life continues to be a mystery. About all that the experts— if any—have to say about it is that a fellow whose parents lived to a "ripe old age" has a better chance than the son of parents who died earlier from natural causes.
Anyway, there's H. Ellsworth Bennett, once a Philadelphia newsboy (and proud of it) who has just passed his hundred and third milestone, and is still going strong. He resumed his paper-selling lately, just for the heck of it, on the Atlantic City boardwalk, and did a lively business. But Bennett doesn't have to sell papers any more. He has a pension for service in the Civil War, and also an income from losing an eye in a railroad accident some 67 years ago.
And how account for his durability? It's just a matter of habits, apparently. He always eats four hard-boiled eggs for breakfast and smokes 15 cigars a day.
The Russians are unsociable, but they certainly pack a wallop.

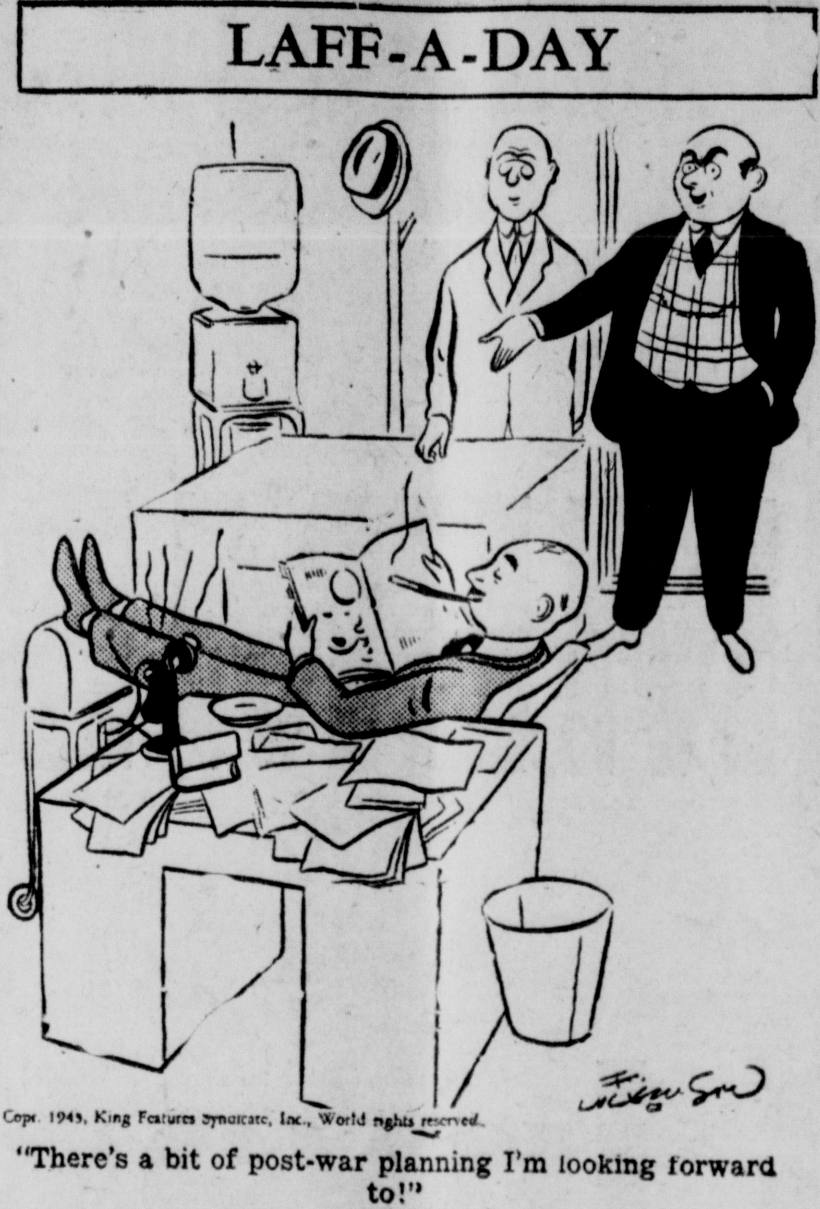

Inside WASHINGTON
By HELEN ESSARY
Central Press Columnist
● WASHINGTON—Heaven knows I'm no thrifty soul. I'm no frugal patient Griselda who saves her pennies and stands with broomstick in hand waiting to keep the wolf from the door. I don't believe in wolves.
Nor am I a worthy female who hides her money in a stocking under the mattress or behind grandpa's clock. But it does worry me to see how money is being spent by the United States government, by the state governments, by the people next door. By everybody! By you and me—if we get down to personal cases.
Heavy Flow
Money is being spent as if it were nothing at all. As if it were blown in on the breezes like dandelion seeds. As if it were as valueless as thistle-down.
Of Money
Nobody likes to squander money more than I do. When I'm in the mental dumps I love to go out and buy something I don't need. Something. Anything. A bright red dress that won't match up with the red dresses of other moods. Or a piece of junk jewelry that doesn't belong on a Fiji islander's topknot. Nor on my own pompadour that never quite makes the brush-up grade.
Frightening
When charge accounts were perennial legal tender, I sometimes went on charging sprees and ran up a fat bill at an expensive shop. Of course, I had to pay the bill. But it was fun while the running up lasted, before that evil day of check writing came. Other people had this charge account mania. But even such jamborees were mild compared with the burning up of today's easy money.
Millions of people now have more money to spend than they ever had before. Look at the hotels where you can't get in to eat or sleep. Look at the trains and buses. It isn't only the servicemen and their families who are traveling and spending. It is the restless money-rich American public. When you come back from a jaunt anywhere you ache in every muscle and nerve from the physical effort of pushing through the crowd.
During the past summer, resorts in the east, at least, have been as crowded as Coney Island on the Fourth of July. Hotel prices have been high. Few people have minded this. For example, there was my light-hearted friend who, expecting to pay $24 a day for a room at Atlantic City, purchased a $25 hat before she started to the beach. She said she was afraid she wouldn't have much money left after her holiday so she'd better shop first.

The WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND
By DREW PEARSON

ARMY INTELLIGENCE LACKING
WASHINGTON—Faulty military intelligence information which is reported to have contributed to heavy casualties and terrific fighting at Salerno has focused the Washington spotlight on both the Army and Navy intelligence units.
That something has been wrong with intelligence operations in both services is indicated by the steady turnover of their chiefs. No chief has remained more than about a year in either naval or military intelligence. Latest to go is Admiral Harold Train, easy-going, likeable chief of Naval Intelligence, now being relieved.
In three years, the Navy has had the following quick succession of intelligence officers: Admiral Walter S. Anderson, Captain Alan G. Kirk, Captain Theodore S. Wilkinson, and Admiral Train.
The Army's record is similar. Since 1940, its intelligence has seen the following turnover of chiefs: Col. E. R. McCabe, Maj. Gen. Sherman Miles, Brig. Gen. Raymond Lee, and Maj. Gen. George V. Strong.
Meanwhile the efficient FBI has been under one man for well over a decade. J. Edgar Hoover has grown up in the service, has picked good men, and is responsible not only for the tough life of kidnappers these days, but for the amazing lack of sabotage in the U. S. A.
One reason attributed for inefficiency inside the naval and military intelligence has been the practice of bringing in blue-blooded young men from the best families and giving them cellophane commissions (you can see through them but they protect from the draft). This practice started before the war when the chief job of an intelligence officer was as a military attache abroad, posts where emphasis was placed on good manners and a private income.
This has now been largely discontinued, but both services are still glutted with boys culled from the social registers.

NAZI DEATH TRAP
One trouble at Salerno was that military intelligence reported only a skeletonized division of Nazis at Naples. Therefore, it was considered safe for Gen. Mark Clark to land with a medium-sized force. However, Marshal Badoglio warned General Eisenhower at the last minute that U. S. intelligence officers were wrong and that the Germans had two and a half divisions at Naples. In fact, the Nazis were simply lying in wait for American troops on the bluffs over the Salerno beaches. They were all ready for a massacre. In view of Badoglio's warning, additional troops were sent to Gen. Clark immediately. But if the U. S. intelligence had been working properly a different landing spot might have been selected, not so intensely defended by the Nazis.

MEMOIRS OF MacARTHUR
Lovely Louise Atwill, ex-wife of Gen. MacArthur, is preparing her memoirs.
One incident in the scintillating tale, which will tickle almost every husband and wife, runs like this:
Scene: The MacArthur suite in Manila. Time: 8:35 p. m.
Mrs. MacArthur is seated before her dressing table putting a last do-dad in her hair. Her hair is long and not easy to manage. She has on an evening gown, obviously.

DIET AND HEALTH
Aiding High Blood Pressure
By LOGAN CLENDENING, M.D.
CORRESPONDENTS often write me for a cure for high blood pressure. There is no such thing as a cure, only a prolonged period of management.
The remedies which have been recommended from time to time include mistletoe, garlic, watermelon seeds and half a hundred others. Whenever you find that many remedies recommended for a condition, you have a pretty good idea that none of them are any good. The old idea of a strict diet with no meat has also been given up as producing no really noticeable results.
There is no use making a person acutely uncomfortable by taking away things that have become a habit with him because the management of a case looks forward to a long pull, even to the end of life, and if the doctor sets too high a standard the patient will not live up to it.
For some reason to which I have not been made privy, most people with high blood pressure are overweight. I do not think the overweight is the cause of high blood pressure because one sees a certain number of quite thin people with good, substantial, booming pressures.
Reducing Helpful
If overweight is present, however, the first step in management is to attempt to reduce it. This does not necessarily lower the blood pressure much, but it is common sense because weight reduction lowers the strain on the heart muscle. Pulling 230 pounds up stairs is more work on the heart than pulling 180 and by just that much, multiplied by the total movements of the day, does weight reduction help.
Early to bed, even if not early to rise, is another rule of management. Ten hours out of the twenty-four in bed, whether one sleeps or not is just so many hours of relaxing instead of tensing all the parts of the circulation. A nap after lunch is also a good rule. If one gets used to it, it will not interfere with the sleep at night.
If not a nap, several periods of complete relaxation a day will do wonders. Lying down with something over the body to keep warm, in a quiet room with no distractions, the muscles relax one by one—the neck, face, shoulder girdle, arms and legs. Don't have the radio on and don't try to read.
Effect of Drugs
Drugs have little or no place in the management of high blood pressure. Sedatives may occasionally be needed, but not too often. If the individual is accustomed to a cocktail or highball before dinner, it will do him no harm to continue; in fact, it itself has a relaxing effect.
Tobacco is a somewhat different matter. It causes spasm of the arteries, and is just the opposite to relaxing. If the individual has been in the habit of smoking a good deal it is unwise to take him off altogether, but he should cut down on it.
Long vacations and long weekends are advisable. In fact, this management would be a good plan for nearly everybody over 55, no matter what his blood pressure.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
D. C.—What are the rules for blood donors?
Answer: Donors must be between 18 and 60 years of age. Donors from the ages of 18 to 21 must have the written consent of parents, guardians, or, if married, the consent of mate.
No one accepted with blood pressure over 200 or under 100.
No one accepted with hemoglobin less than 80.
No one accepted within three months after a major surgical procedure.
No one accepted with history of tuberculosis in past five years.
No one accepted with undulant fever.
No one accepted who has had malaria in 15 years.
No one accepted with diabetes.
No one accepted with history of fainting spells or convulsions.
No one accepted with jaundice within past six years.

Women are said to make better workers than men in political campaigns, are more practical minded about politics, and adhere strictly to platform pledges.

For Monday, September 20
MONDAY'S astrological forecast points to a period of trial and error, in which time should be taken to analyze, revise and attack with energy and shrewdness. Use quiet and restraint where the impulse is toward strife, tempest and excitement. Under such stress relax, seek diversion or enjoyment, especially with the young.
Those whose birthday it is are likely to have a year in which obstacles, delays, restrictions and depressions threaten defeat unless rigorous effort toward correcting mistakes and attacking impediments is used. The tendency to fly off the handle in defeat, to act impulsively and recklessly, may but accent the dangers.
A child born on this day should have much skill and mentality to attain success, but its conflicting traits of character need direction. Its impetuous nature is offset by serious, reserved and depressing state of mind.
"WHERE'S THE FIRE?"
FISHKILL, N. Y. — Francis Poutre, a driver for the Mack Engine Co., of Allentown, Pa., was stopped by a New York State trooper who stopped him on the Albany Post road and asked: "Where's the fire?" Poutre, delivering a new engine to the Hudson N. Y. Fire Department, admitted there was no fire. A justice of the peace fined him $15. The trooper said Poutre was speeding, siren wide open, forcing other vehicles to the roadside.

ASK ADAM
by WATKINS E. WRIGHT

SYNOPSIS
ADAM NORTH, young bachelor who recently converted an old Linville buggy factory into a war plant, becomes a "hill-in" stand-by for the town's party givers, among them SUSAN POTTER, whose husband, Bill, has lately been breaking evening dates to "negotiate" a real estate deal with ALICIA CARTER, a wily, flirtatious widow. Adam, unknowingly, is loved by his secretary, and the RUTH MOOREHOUSE, who at present is having difficulty dissuading the affections of JACK VINTON, a mechanic in the plant. Adam, not being aware of Ruth's feelings, is just becoming intrigued with BRENDA LEIGH, who is now enjoying an extended vacation in Linville, which she left several years ago to launch a journalistic career in New York City.
CHAPTER FIFTEEN
THEN, SEPARATING, Adam and a crew of workers began a systematic and thorough search of the factory and the grounds for the bomb they thought might be hidden.
It took hours, since no crack, or crevice was overlooked. The searchers were in and out of buildings—up and down stairs—under sheds and outhouses, and on top of them. They had workers open their lockers and even their lunch boxes, meals they had brought with them, and at midnight, they worked silently and determinedly, with workers asking few questions, but glancing at them with interest. There was a quiet tension, but no indication of panic or fear.
And when the search was over, nothing had been found.
"There's always some person around," said Adam, when they had returned to his office, "who has an urge to send anonymous messages or letters. Just another type of pest folk have to put up with."
"You mean you think that's what it was?" said Jack.
Adam nodded. "What else could it be? We didn't find anything, did we?"
"No sir."
The foreman rubbed his chin and looked troubled. "Anyway, I think we should increase the guard around the factory," he said. "I trust the men, but still we can't be too cautious."
"And maybe we ought to have an FBI man on the job, too," said someone else.
"Maybe you're right," Adam said thoughtfully. "I've an idea that the whole thing's a new kind of sabotage, purely psychological in its approach."
"I don't get you," the foreman said.
"I mean," Adam explained, "that if it isn't just a fanatic at work, it may be someone who has no intention of planting a bomb, but only wants to create a sense of fear among the workers, thus slowing up work. A saboteur could work from that angle, you know—and do a heck of a lot of damage."
"Sure!" said Jack. "He could drop notes like the one found tonight and keep the workers on edge—never knowing when the thing would turn out to be something besides the cry of 'wolf, wolf'—like in the fable."
"Exactly!" agreed Adam. "By the way," he said, addressing the foreman, "I didn't see Otto at work tonight."
"No, he had a day off coming to him, and asked if he could have it today. He wanted to go up to Richmond on a little trip."
"What sort of trip?" Adam asked.
"I didn't question him," the foreman replied. "I don't like the guy, but he is a good worker when he puts his mind to it. Besides, we can't pick on him just because his name is Otto and he speaks with a queer sort of accent."
"Of course not," said Adam. He remembered Otto's sullenness, his resentment over being questioned. "And yet," he added, "strange things happen during these hectic times. Maybe I'd better go over his papers more thoroughly, and—"
"And hand 'em over to an FBI man," said Jack.
Adam smiled at the boy. "I'm afraid you've been seeing too many movies about saboteurs," he said. "You're a sort of FBI complex."
"Movies?" said Jack. "There's darned little time for seeing movies these days. And when I do go I take Ruth, and she won't see anything but romance and comedies. She says there's enough trouble in real life without watching it on the screen."
"She's darned right, too," said the foreman.
Adam looked at his watch. "Good Lord!" he exclaimed. "It's 2 o'clock in the morning! You fellows can go now."
"Aren't you coming?" Jack asked.
"No, I'm going to spend the night here. This is the sort of emergency for which I had a cot installed."
"You mean you're going to sleep on that thing?" the foreman said, pointing at a narrow canvas cot in the corner of the office.
"Yes," answered Adam. "Don't forget there's a lot of fellows sleeping on far worse these days."
"Let me stay here with you," Jack said.
"No, you go home and get a few hours' sleep," Adam said. "You're a worker in tools, my boy—and tools are more important than anything else just now."
The men started filing out. Adam called the foreman back.
"See what you can learn about Otto's trip to Richmond," he said. "But do it in as diplomatic a way as you can."

ENDANGERED TREASURE

HENRY E. Fritz of Pelham, N. Y., writes to the New York Times that Leonardo Da Vinci's great painting, "The Last Supper" is not painted on an interior wall of the church, but on the end-wall of the refectory of the monastery adjacent to the church of Santa Maria della Grazie near Milan, which was recently bombed.

"If the painting was discovered miraculously intact when the debris was cleared away, the bomb must have struck the church, whose cupola and choir were designed by the great Italian Renaissance architect, Bramante, and the debris fallen on the refectory. The picture had lived through many vicissitudes. It has survived floods and neglect. It was pelted with stones by French dragoons under Louis XII, who used the refectory as a barracks in 1499."

This is merely one sample of what is happening under the bombs of modern war. Every lover of art, of history, of religion will hope that this great painting may be spared once more. But other treasures have already gone and more will go.

If choice is necessary, doubtless the freedom of mankind is worth the loss of many beautiful creations of the past. But wiser people than the Germans, who started this war, would have realized that had they kept the peace, the glories of the past, of the present and those to be created in the future could have been preserved, and freedom, too, and prosperity besides, if they had gone about securing these aims in the right way.

LONGEVITY

THE secret of long life continues to be a mystery. About all that the experts—if any—have to say about it is that a fellow whose parents lived to a "ripe old age" has a better chance than the son of parents who died earlier from natural causes.

Anyway, there's H. Ellsworth Bennett, once a Philadelphia newsboy (and proud of it) who has just passed his hundred and third milestone, and is still going strong. He resumed his paper-selling lately, just for the heck of it, on the Atlantic City boardwalk, and did a lively business. But Bennett doesn't have to sell papers any more. He has a pension for service in the Civil War, and also an income from losing an eye in a railroad accident some 67 years ago.

And how account for his durability? It's just a matter of habits, apparently. He always eats four hard-boiled eggs for breakfast and smokes 15 cigars a day.

The Russians are unsociable, but they certainly pack a wallop.

Inside WASHINGTON

By HELEN ESSARY
Central Press Columnist

WASHINGTON—Heaven knows I'm no thrifty soul. I'm no frugal Griselda who saves her pennies and stands with broomstick in hand waiting to keep the wolf from the door. I don't believe in wolves.

Nor am I a worthy female who hides her money in a stocking under the mattress or behind grandpa's clock. But it does worry me to see how money is being spent by the United States government, by the state governments, by the people next door. By everybody! By you and me—if we get down to personal cases.

Heavy Flow Money is being spent as if it were nothing at all. As if it were blown in on the breezes like dandelion seeds. As if it were as valueless as thistle-down.

Of Money Nobody likes to squander money more than I do. When I'm in the mental dumps I love to go out and buy something I don't need. Something. Anything. A bright red dress that won't match up with the red dresses of other moods. Or a piece of junk jewelry that doesn't belong on a Fiji islander's topknot. Nor on my own pompadour that never quite makes the brush-up grade.

Frightening When charge accounts were perennial legal tender, I sometimes went on charging spree and ran up a fat bill at an expensive shop. Of course, I had to pay the bill. But it was fun while the running up lasted, before that evil day of check writing came. Other people had this charge account mania. But even such jamborees were mild compared with the burning up of today's easy money.

Millions of people now have more money to spend than they ever had before. Look at the hotels where you can't get in to eat or sleep. Look at the trains and buses. It isn't only the servicemen and their families who are traveling and spending. It is the restless money-rich American public. When you come back from a jaunt anywhere you ache in every muscle and nerve from the physical effort of pushing through the crowd.

During the past summer, resorts in the east, at least, have been as crowded as Coney Island on the Fourth of July. Hotel prices have been high. Few people have minded this. For example, there was my light-hearted friend who, expecting to pay $24 a day for a room at Atlantic City, purchased a $25 hat before she started to the beach. She said she was afraid she wouldn't have much money left after her holiday so she'd better shop first.

ARMY INTELLIGENCE LACKING

WASHINGTON—Faulty military intelligence information which is reported to have contributed to heavy casualties and terrific fighting at Salerno has focused the Washington spotlight on both the Army and Navy intelligence units.

That something has been wrong with intelligence operations in both services is indicated by the steady turnover of their chiefs. No chief has remained more than about a year in either naval or military intelligence. Latest to go is Admiral Harold Train, easy-going, likeable chief of Naval Intelligence, now being relieved.

In three years, the Navy has had the following quick succession of intelligence officers: Admiral Walter S. Anderson, Captain Alan G. Kirk, Captain Theodore S. Wilkinson, and Admiral Train.

The Army's record is similar. Since 1940, its intelligence has seen the following turnover of chiefs: Col. E. R. McCabe, Maj. Gen. Sherman Miles, Brig. Gen. Raymond Lee, and Maj. Gen. George V. Strong.

Meanwhile the efficient FBI has been under one man for well over a decade. J. Edgar Hoover has grown up in the service, has picked good men, and is responsible not only for the tough life of kidnappers these days, but for the amazing lack of sabotage in the U. S. A.

One reason attributed for inefficiency inside the naval and military intelligence has been the practice of bringing in blue-blooded young men from the best families and giving them cellophane commissions (you can see through them but they protect from the draft). This practice started before the war when the chief job of an intelligence officer was as a military attaché abroad, posts where emphasis was placed on good manners and a private income.

This has now been largely discontinued, but both services are still glutted with boys culled from the social registers.

NAZI DEATH TRAP

One trouble at Salerno was that military intelligence reported only a skeletonized division of Nazis at Naples. Therefore, it was considered safe for Gen. Mark Clark to land with a medium-sized force. However, Marshal Badoglio warned General Eisenhower at the last minute that U. S. intelligence officers were wrong and that the Germans had two and a half divisions at Naples. In fact, the Nazis were simply lying in wait for American troops on the bluffs over the Salerno beaches. They were all ready for a massacre. In view of Badoglio's warning, additional troops were sent to Gen. Clark immediately. But if the U. S. intelligence had been working properly a different landing spot might have been selected, not so intensely defended by the Nazis.

DIET AND HEALTH

Aiding High Blood Pressure

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M.D.

CORRESPONDENTS often write me for a cure for high blood pressure. There is no such thing as a cure, only a prolonged period of management.

The remedies which have been recommended from time to time include mistletoe, garlic, watermelon seeds and half a hundred others. Whenever you find that many remedies recommended for a condition, you have a pretty good idea that none of them are any good. The old idea of a strict diet with no meat has also been given up as producing no really noticeable results.

There is no use making a person acutely uncomfortable by taking away things that have become a habit with him because the management of a case looks forward to a long pull, even to the end of life, and if the doctor sets too high a standard the patient will not live up to it.

For some reason to which I have not been made privy, most people with high blood pressure are overweight. I do not think the overweight is the cause of high blood pressure because one sees a certain number of quite thin people with good, substantial, booming pressures.

Reducing Helpful

If overweight is present, however, the first step in management is to attempt to reduce it. This does not necessarily lower the blood pressure much, but it is common sense because weight reduction lowers the strain on the heart muscle. Pulling 230 pounds up stairs is more work on the heart than pulling 180 and by just that much, multiplied by the total movements of the day, does weight reduction help.

Early to bed, even if not early to rise, is another rule of management. Ten hours out of the twenty-four in bed, whether one sleeps or not is just so many hours of relaxing instead of tensing all the parts of the circulation. A nap after lunch is also a good rule. If one gets used to it, it will not interfere with the sleep at night.

If not a nap, several periods of complete relaxation a day will do wonders. Lying down with something over the body to keep warm, in a quiet room with no distractions, the muscles relax one by one—the neck, face, shoulder girdle, arms and legs. Don't have the radio on and don't try to read.

Effect of Drugs

Drugs have little or no place in the management of high blood pressure. Sedatives may occasionally be needed, but not too often. If the individual is accustomed to a cocktail or highball before dinner, it will do him no harm to continue, in fact, it itself has a relaxing effect.

Tobacco is a somewhat different matter. It causes spasm of the arteries, and is just the opposite to relaxing. If the individual has been in the habit of smoking a good deal it is unwise to take him off altogether, but he should cut down on it.

Long vacations and long weekends are advisable. In fact, this management would be a good plan for nearly everybody over 55, no matter what his blood pressure.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

D. C.:—What are the rules for blood donors?
Answer: Donors must be between 18 and 60 years of age. Donors from the ages of 18 to 21 must have the written consent of parents, guardians, or, if married, the consent of mate.

No one accepted with hemoglobin less than 80.
No one accepted within three months after a major surgical procedure.

No one accepted with history of tuberculosis in past five years.
No one accepted with undulant fever.

No one accepted who has had malaria in 15 years.
No one accepted with diabetes.
No one accepted with history of fainting spells or convulsions.
No one accepted with jaundice within past six years.

STARS SAY—

For Monday, September 20
MONDAY's astrological forecast points to a period of trial and error, in which time should be taken to analyze, revise and attack with energy and shrewdness. Use quiet and restraint where the impulse is toward strife, tempest and excitement. Under such stress relax, seek diversion or enjoyment, especially with the young.

Those whose birthday it is are likely to have a year in which obstacles, delays, restrictions and depressions threaten defeat unless rigorous effort toward correcting mistakes and attacking impediments is used. The tendency to fly off the handle in defeat, to act impulsively and recklessly, may but accent the dangers.

A child born on this day should have much skill and mentality to attain success, but its conflicting traits of character need direction. Its impetuous nature is offset by serious, reserved and depressing state of mind.

"WHERE'S THE FIRE?"
FISHKILL, N. Y. — Francis Poutre, a driver for the Mack Engine Co. of Allentown, Pa., was stumped by a New York State trooper who stopped him on the Albany Post road and asked: "Where's the fire?" Poutre, delivering a new engine to the Hudson N. Y. Fire Department, admitted there was no fire. A justice of the peace fined him $15. The trooper said Poutre was speeding, siren wide open, forcing other vehicles to the roadside.

Washington
Of Yesterday
Has Vanished

The "Back the Attack" War Bond show is superb and useful. But do I have to enjoy hearing guns shot off in the meadows where service bands used to toot "O Sole Mio" on sultry afternoons? Must I be happy at the sight of bare-legged little boys climbing over captured German bombers and scrambling over great Liberators where not so long ago it was a little darning to look at dancers in wisps of cheesecloth tiptoeing to the tinkle of Grieg?

But pay no attention to these whippers. I don't really mean them. I'm merely appalled by the might and power of the United States of America once it gets into action. Nobody can stand up against us. I'm a little frightened. But am I proud? I'll say I am!

ASK ADAM

RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION WATKINS E. WRIGHT

ADAM NORTH, young bachelor who recently converted an old Livville buggy factory into a war plant, becomes a "hill-in" stand-by for the town's party givers, among them being

SUSAN POTTER, whose husband, Bill, has lately been breaking evening dates to "negotiate" a real estate deal with ALICIA CARTER, a wily, flirtatious widow, Adam, unknowingly, is loved by his secretary.

RUTH MOOREHOUSE, who at present is having difficulty dissuading the affections of

JACK VINTON, a mechanic in the plant, Adam, not being aware of Ruth's feelings, is just becoming intrigued with BRENDA LEIGH, who is now enjoying an extended vacation in Livville, which she left several years ago to launch a journalistic career in New York City.

YESTERDAY: Adam is hurriedly summoned from an amateur play rehearsal to his war plant, where he is shown a note found by the night watchman which warns that the factory is going to be blown up. Immediately Adam gathers a crew to search the buildings for any bomb that may have been planted.

CHAPTER FIFTEEN
THEN, SEPARATING, Adam and a crew of workers began a systematic and thorough search of the factory and the grounds for the bomb they thought might be hidden.

It took hours, since no crack or crevice was overlooked. The searchers were in and out of buildings—up and down stairs—under sheds and outhouses, and on top of them. They had workers open their lockers and even their lunch boxes, meals they had brought with them to eat at midnight. They worked silently and determinedly, with workers asking few questions, but glancing at them with interest. There was a quiet tension, but no indication of panic or fear.

And when the search was over, nothing had been found.

"There's always some person around," said Adam, "when he has returned to his office, 'who has an urge to send anonymous messages or letters. Just another type of folk have to put up with.'"

"You mean that's what it was?" said Jack.

Adam nodded. "What else could it be? We didn't find anything, did we?"

"No sir."

The foreman rubbed his chin and looked troubled. "Anyway, I think we should increase the guard around the factory," he said. "I trust the men, but still we can't be too cautious."

"And maybe we ought to have an FBI man on the job, too," said someone else.

"Maybe you're right," Adam said thoughtfully. "I've an idea that the whole thing's a new kind of sabotage, purely psychological in its approach."

"I don't get you," the foreman said.

"Mean," Adam explained, "that if it isn't just a fanatic at work, it may be someone who has no intention of planting a bomb, but only wants to create a sense of fear among the workers, thus slowing up work. A saboteur could work from that angle, you know—and do a heck of a lot of damage."

"Sure!" said Jack. "He could drop notes like the one found tonight and keep the workers on edge—never knowing when the thing would turn out to be something besides the cry of 'wolf, wolf'—like in the fable."

"Exactly!" agreed Adam. "By the way," he said, addressing the foreman, "I didn't see Otto at work tonight."

"No, he had a day off coming to him, and asked if he could have it today. He wanted to go up to Richmond on a little trip."

"What sort of trip?" Adam asked.

"I didn't question him," the foreman replied. "I don't like the guy, but he is a good worker when he puts his mind to it. Besides, we can't pick on him just because his name is Otto and he speaks with a queer sort of accent."

"Of course not," said Adam. He remembered Otto's silliness, his resentment over being questioned.

"And yet," he added, "strange things happen during these hectic times. Maybe I'd better go over his papers more thoroughly, and—"

"And hand 'em over to an FBI man," said Jack.

Adam smiled at the boy. "I'm afraid you've been seeing too many movies about saboteurs," he said. "You're a sort of FBI complex."

"Movies?" said Jack. "There's darned little time for seeing movies these days. And when I do go I take Ruth, and she won't see anything but romances and comedies. She says there's enough trouble in real life without watching it on the screen."

"She's darned right, too," said the foreman.

Adam looked at his watch. "Good Lord!" he exclaimed. "It's 2 o'clock in the morning! You fellows can go now."

"Aren't you coming?" Jack asked.

"No, I'm going to spend the night here. This is the sort of emergency for which I had a cot installed."

"You mean you're going to sleep on that thing?" the foreman said, pointing at a narrow canvas cot in the corner of the office.

"Yes," answered Adam. "Don't forget there's a lot of fellows sleeping on far worse these days."

"Let me stay here with you," Jack said.

"No, you go home and get a few hours' sleep," Adam said. "You're a worker in tools, my boy—and tools are more important than anything else just now."

The men started filing out. Adam called the foreman back.

"See what you can learn about Otto's trip to Richmond," he said. "But do it in as diplomatic a way as you can."

He got up, walked to the cot and sat down upon its edge. There he took off his shoes, pondering this and pondering that. Finally he decided that he'd try to go on with his part in the play. It wouldn't be fair to Mrs. Platt and the others to back out. Besides, it might be fun to do something that would take his mind off the factory, although those love scenes with Susan Potter bothered him. He hoped Bill Potter would have sense enough—be broad-minded enough—to realize it was only a play. Just that and nothing more. Only, he thought as he stretched out, Susan Potter was a kissable sort of person, especially now that she was taking an interest in her personal appearance. He closed his eyes and began to drift off to sleep, only to be haunted by dreams that just missed being nightmares. Dreams in which he spent a lot of time dodging Bill Potter and bombs.

ASHVILLE

Nolan Murphy and family, after a residence of 14 years in Ashville, moved to their new home in Westerville Saturday. Mr. Murphy was here for a couple of hours Sunday morning removing a few of the leftovers not on the load Saturday. Mr. Murphy was a teacher in the local high school, commercial department, and will continue in the same line of teaching in his new location. The dwelling made vacant by the Murphys will be occupied soon by Stanley Stout and family. Mr. Stout is employed at the L. S. Foreman garage.

Plenty of hustle around and business out at the Rodger Hedges hybrid seed corn plant now, with all hands at it. The corn crop, a big one, is now in process of being hand husked and placed into the 1000-bushel drier. Harold Odaffer, head salesman for the finished product, told us that many of his customers are having their next Spring orders filled now. The only reason he can think of for this early demand is that the corn growers for the coming year do not know for sure what sort of thing for them is just ahead.

Maurice Clum, son of A. C. and Mrs. Clum, Station street, is home from Camp Robinson, Arkansas, on a 15-day furlough. He is a truck operator in the artillery division. Leroy Berry, too, a local boy, is in the same camp.

One Paul Green, who for some reason was not operating his truck over on Route 104 to suit a highway patrolman, was brought over here to Squire Malone for a hearing charged with "reckless operation." He was fined $25 and costs and released on the payment of same.

The "big frost" of Saturday morning, September 18, with a temperature reading on the corner of 42 degrees, did but little damage to growing vegetation here.

Among the several hunters out in the woods early Wednesday morning, the 15th, first legal squirrel hunting day of the season, was our Charles Sherman who had his good spot to get 'em sure, already located and hunting permit secured. So, he says, he was out at daybreak that no one should beat him to his good spot. Stayed all day, coming home late in the evening, rewarded with three very fine ones, as he thought. Charles tells us that his three-take, after being in the cooking process for two days, softened up enough for eating.

The members of the local United Brethren church Brotherhood held Thursday evening at the home of Russell Reid over on Route 104, their annual roasting ear party. Twenty dozens of the choicest ears to be found anywhere, with all the trimmings, were served to the near 100 present. And that "good time had by all" fits in just right for this corn boiling party.

In 1940 the automobile industry was the leading consumer of steel, demanding about 16 percent of the year's output. Shipbuilding then required only 2 percent of the year's steel output. Today about one out of every five tons of finished steel produced is used by the shipbuilding industry.

Cards And Yanks Each Drop Pair Of Contests

NEW YORK, Sept. 20 — The exalted masters of their respective leagues, the New York Yankees and St. Louis Cardinals, are walking around in confused circles today after taking thorough pastings yesterday from slaves who heretofore served their peers no better purpose than to fatten up their lordly averages.

The Yankees, particularly, are in high dudgeon over the whole thing. Here they are, five games from the 1943 American League pennant, and the Washington Senators, who were supposed to be contentedly gnawing on their second-place bone, rose up to twice smite the Yankees, 3 to 2 and 5 to 1. In addition to which, the victories were gained by the Senators off two highly regarded Yankee hurlers—Spud Chandler and Ernie Bonham.

Chandler was outpitched by Early Wynn in the ten-inning opener, and yielded nine hits to Wynn's four. Jake Powell's tenth-inning single provided the winning run. In the nightcap, Mickey Haefer outlasted Ernie Bonham and hurled eight shutout innings in which only three Yankees reached first.

The Cards, newly-created 1943 National league champions, were laid prostrate by the fifth-place Chicago Cubs, 6 to 0 and 10 to 9.

To put it bluntly, the Cubs made the Cards look putrid. Henry Wyse blanked the champions in the opener, while his clubmates turned on the heat with 13 hits. Paul Erickson gained his first victory in the nightcap, helped by three other club twirlers. The Cards also helped things along with four errors in the afterpiece, and the Cubs' Bill Nicholson slammed out a homer in each game.

The Philadelphia Athletics steamed into the station on schedule, officially clinching last place in the American league (an old Philadelphia custom) with a loss to the Boston Red Sox in the first game of a twin bill, 14 to 0.

The Mackmen came back in the afterpiece, however, to throttle the Red Sox, 6 to 1. The Red Sox broke an eight-game losing streak in the first contest when they rapped three A's hurlers for 21 hits. The A's then took the second behind the eight-hit hurling of Jesse Flores.

The Cleveland Indians closed down their last home stand with twin victories over the Detroit Tigers, 1 to 0 and 6 to 2. Jim Bagby and Al Smith turned in the twirling triumphs, the 16th of the year for each.

The Chicago White Sox put the cork in their home season by dropping the first half of a twin bill to the St. Louis Browns, 7 to 4, then bouncing back to take the afterpiece, 6 to 1. The White Sox hit Steve Sundra for 13 safeties in the opener, but failed to couple them, and in addition committed four errors. A five-run rally in the eighth frame sewed up the nightcap for the White Sox.

The last-place New York Giants soundly thrashed the Brooklyn Dodgers in both halves of a doubleheader, 3 to 1 and 7 to 4. Cliff Melton out-duelled Curt Davis in the opener. In the nightcap, Ace Adams made his 66th mound appearance to tie the 35-year-old major league record for the number of games pitched. The Giants piled up four runs off Hal Gregg in the fourth inning to erase Brooklyn's 2 to 0 lead, and it was clear sailing from there in.

The Boston Braves throttled the Philadelphia Phillies twice, 3 to 2 and 6 to 5 in 14 innings. Jim Tobin was given his 18th victory in the opener when an unearned run was scored in the ninth with two out. Al Javery struck out 13 bat-

Today's VICTORY GARDEN-GRAPH

Harvesting Vine Crops in the Victory Garden

SQUASHES, pumpkins, melons and cucumbers should be gathered before the advent of the first killing frost. The first light frosts darken the foliage, and many gardeners keep hay or straw handy to use as a mulch for the protection of the fruits during this period. It is a worthwhile practice for some good growing weather usually follows the first frosts.

As illustrated in the accompanying Garden-Graph, pumpkins which are not to be used immediately but stored for future use should be cut off with an inch or more of the vine attached to each

The Philadelphia Athletics steamed into the station on schedule, officially clinching last place in the American league (an old Philadelphia custom) with a loss to the Boston Red Sox in the first game of a twin bill, 14 to 0.

The Mackmen came back in the afterpiece, however, to throttle the Red Sox, 6 to 1. The Red Sox broke an eight-game losing streak in the first contest when they rapped three A's hurlers for 21 hits. The A's then took the second behind the eight-hit hurling of Jesse Flores.

The Cleveland Indians closed down their last home stand with twin victories over the Detroit Tigers, 1 to 0 and 6 to 2. Jim Bagby and Al Smith turned in the twirling triumphs, the 16th of the year for each.

The Chicago White Sox put the cork in their home season by dropping the first half of a twin bill to the St. Louis Browns, 7 to 4, then bouncing back to take the afterpiece, 6 to 1. The White Sox hit Steve Sundra for 13 safeties in the opener, but failed to couple them, and in addition committed four errors. A five-run rally in the eighth frame sewed up the nightcap for the White Sox.

The last-place New York Giants soundly thrashed the Brooklyn Dodgers in both halves of a double-header, 3 to 1 and 7 to 4. Cliff Melton out-duelled Curt Davis in the opener. In the nightcap, Ace Adams made his 86th mound appearance to tie the 35-year-old major league record for the number of games pitched. The Giants piled up four runs off Hal Gregg in the fourth inning to erase Brooklyn's 2 to 0 lead, and it was clear sailing from there in.

The Boston Braves throttled the Philadelphia Phillies twice, 3 to 2 and 6 to 5 in 14 innings. Jim Tobin was given his 13th victory in the opener when an unearned run was scored in the ninth with two out. Al Javery struck out 13 bat-

AN INCH OR MORE OF VINE ON EACH SIDE OF STEM
Harvesting Vine Crops in the Victory Garden
By DEAN HALLIDAY
Released by Central Press Association
SQUASHES, pumpkins, melons and cucumbers should be gathered before the advent of the first killing frost. The first light frosts darken the foliage, and many gardeners keep hay or straw handy to use as a mulch for the protection of the fruits during this period. It is a worthwhile practice for some good growing weather usually follows the first frosts.
As illustrated in the accompanying Garden-Graph, pumpkins which are not to be used immediately but stored for future use should be cut off with an inch or more of the vine attached to each

DETROIT LIONS SHOW STRENGTH IN PRO CLASSIC

By International News Service
Professional football was off on its 1943 grid today with Detroit's rejuvenated Lions turning in a surprising 35 to 17 victory over the Chicago Cardinals.

It was the only opening day game yesterday, but the Lions, almost a nonentity last season, served notice they will be a serious contender for the crown this year.

Two more teams swing into action next Sunday, the Brooklyn Dodgers at Detroit and the Chicago Bears tangling with the Packers at Green Bay. Saturday October 2, the Dodgers will travel to Philadelphia to meet the new Phil-Pitt squad, a merger of the Philadelphia Eagles and the Pittsburgh Steelers of last year.

The other two teams of the National Football league, the New York Giants and the champion Washington Redskins, will not swing into action until October 3, when they meet at the National capital.

At Detroit yesterday, the Lions who failed to win a single game last season unveiled their new coach, Gus Dorais, and a diversified attack that had the Cardinals guessing.

Frankie Sinkwich, Georgia all-American, was closely watched in his professional debut and was able to advance the Lions only 24 yards in the five times he carried the ball. One of his passing efforts, however, was good for a touchdown.

Harry Hopp, brother of Johnny Hopp, St. Louis Cardinal first baseman, sparked the Detroit power attack with three touchdowns.

STERLING JUVENILES TO VIE FOR HAWTHORNE CASH

CHICAGO, Sept. 20—The outstanding field of the Hawthorne racing meet was being lined up today for next Saturday's running of the $5,000 added Juvenile handicap, dedicated to the war charity program.

The youngsters from which Racing Secretary William Dahlstrom will make known the complete list of entries for the stake today have furnished most of the highlights of the meeting to date.

The thoroughbreds include such performers as Zacapet, Sirius, Nelson Dunstan, Santa Claus, Durazna, Flying Doug, American Eagle, Evelyn Rolls, Miss Ada J., Brief Sight and Challenge Me. These mounts represent the cream of the juvenile crop.

The "War Cause Day" race was expected to attract the largest crowd of the Hawthorne meeting.

DETROIT LIONS SHOW STRENGTH IN PRO CLASSIC

By International News Service
Professional football was off on its 1943 grind today with Detroit's rejuvenated Lions turning in a surprising 35 to 17 victory over the Chicago Cardinals.

It was the only opening day game yesterday, but the Lions, almost a nonentity last season, served notice they will be a serious contender for the crown this year.

Two more teams swing into action next Sunday, the Brooklyn Dodgers at Detroit and the Chicago Bears tangling with the Packers at Green Bay. Saturday October 2, the Dodgers will travel to Philadelphia to meet the new Phil-Pitt squad, a merger of the Philadelphia Eagles and the Pittsburgh Steelers of last year.

The other two teams of the National Football league, the New York Giants and the champion Washington Redskins, will not swing into action until October 3, when they meet at the National capital.

At Detroit yesterday, the Lions who failed to win a single game last season unveiled their new coach, Gus Dorais, and a diversified attack that had the Cardinals guessing.

Frankie Sinkwich, Georgia all-American, was closely watched in his professional debut and was able to advance the Lions only 24 yards in the five times he carried the ball. One of his passing efforts, however, was good for a touchdown.

Harry Hopp, brother of Johnny Hopp, St. Louis Cardinal first baseman, sparked the Detroit power attack with three touchdowns.

STERLING JUVENILES TO VIE FOR HAWTHORNE CASH

CHICAGO, Sept. 20—The outstanding field of the Hawthorne racing meet was being lined up today for next Saturday's running of the $5,000 added Juvenile handicap, dedicated to the war charity program.

The youngsters from which Racing Secretary William Dahlstrom will make known the complete list of entries for the stake today have furnished most of the highlights of the meeting to date.

The thoroughbreds include such performers as Zacapat, Sirius, Nelson Dunstan, Santa Claus, Durazna, Flying Doll, American Eagle, Evelyn Rugs, Miss Ada J., Brief Sight and Challenge Me. These mounts represent the cream of the juvenile crop.

The "War Cause Day" race was expected to attract the largest crowd of the Hawthorne meeting.

DINAH TO TRAVEL

Dinah Shore is planning a ten-day whirlwind camp tour to Winnipeg, Canada, to sing for the American boys in training in that area, if she can get time off from her current Goldwyn picture. She wants to do the tour near the end of this month, returning to Hollywood in time to launch her radio series which starts September 30 on CBS.

"MR. DISTRICT ATTORNEY"

A woman who is profoundly irritated by her son-in-law's consistent wrong-guessing in his attempts to be a Black Marketer is the central figure in "The Case of the Murderous Mother-in-Law," which will be taken up by "Mr. District Attorney," on Wednesday at 9:30 p. m., over WLW. Her irritation reaches its peak when he buys a large quantity of coffee, just before rationing ends, then murders a man in an attempt to recoup his losses. Then the mother-in-law takes action which prompts "Mr. District Attorney" to investigate. Jay Kostyn is heard as the "D. A." with Len Doyle as Harrington and Vicki Vola as Miss Miller.

"TREASURE CHEST"

Music ranging from the ever-popular "Stardust" to the current best-seller, "Pistol Packin' Mama," will be heard on Horace Heidt's "Treasure Chest" program over WLW Tuesday at 8:30 p. m. Other tunes are "Land of Maple," "All Or Nothing At All," "Victory Jump" and "She's the Sweetheart of the Service." Soloists include Trumpeter Shorty Chertock, Henry Russell and the Glee Club, and Donna and her Don Juans.

"SALUTE TO YOUTH"

Lt. Ruth G. Haskell, an Army nurse who continued to tend to the wounded for four months after she had fractured her back, will be hailed in the "Service Story of the Week," on "Salute to Youth" Tuesday at 7:30 p. m., over WLW. Miss Haskell, now stationed at Fort Dix, N. J., will appear on the program in person, to tell how she injured her back in a fall on a wet stairway aboard an invasion ship, and concealed the injury until she collapsed, four months later. Musically, the program features Nadine Conner, Metropolitan Opera soprano, and Raymond Paige's "Young Americans" orchestra in a variety of selections, including "From the Land of the Sky Blue Water" and "Oh, What a Beautiful Morning," both sung by Miss Conner; "Blue Skies," "Whispering" and "I've Got Sixpence," by the orchestra and chorus. The week's guest from the production lines will be Walter Lee, who developed the "Life Guard" inner tube, now being used

MORTON GOULD

Morton Gould conducts the premiere performance of his "American Salute," based on "When Johnny Comes Marching Home," as a highlight of a program in which patriotic music has a large part, on his Wednesday night "Carnival" show, on September 22, at 10:30 p. m., over station WBS. Alec Templeton's improvisations and impressions, and the singing of an American Legion chorus, broadcasting from Oklahoma, round out this varied program.

The pianist-satirist first plays Ravel's "Empress of the Pagodas," and returns later in the show to improvise on themes suggested by members of the studio audience, and to give his impressions of popular French and American crooners. Orchestral selections include "Piccolino," a string choir rendition of "Yesterdays," the "American Legion March" and Gould's "American Salute."

BONNIE BAKER

Bonnie Baker, who catapulted to national attention with her chirping of "Oh, Johnny," will be a guest contestant on Wally But-worth's "Take-A-Card" quiz over WHKC Wednesday at 8:30 p. m.

RADIO NEWS NOTES

There's no rest for Dinah Shore. The popular singer starts a new series on CBS September 30 and also begins a new picture, "Three Cheers for the Boys," in which Freddy Slack's orchestra will supply the music.

Another Barrymore is headed for radio. It's Diana Barrymore, niece of Lionel, starred in "The Mayor of the Town" over CBS Wednesdays. Diana is a principal in "From This Day Forward," with Bramwell Fletcher, Gene Lockhart and Frank Tours, now being offered for Fall sponsorship.

Phil Spitalny and his "Hour of Charm" all-girl choir sang one of the two favorite hymns of American service men, when they dedicated "Rock of Ages" to Camp Chaffee, Ark., Sunday. The hymn was composed during the 18th century by Augustus Montague Toplady, and is probably the most widely popular hymn in the English language.

Obviously the most excited and enthusiastic Frank Sinatra fan at the opening Burns and Allen broadcast of the season was Louise Erickson, the 16-year-old miss who plays the title role in "A Date with Judy." Louise arrived early at the studio, securing a seat front row center and, after the broadcast, tore backstage to corner her hero for conversation and an autograph.

Marion Loveridge, 13-year-old singing star of Olivo's program, prefers to attend the city's public school in her neighborhood, rather than the professional children's school which most youngsters attend. Marion's parents prefer that she grow up with no more advantages than her Bay Ridge, Brooklyn, neighbors.

Music ranging from the ever-popular "Stardust" to the current best-seller, "Pistol Packin' Mama," will be heard on Horace Heidt's "Treasure Chest" program over WLW Tuesday at 8:30 p. m. Other tunes are "Land of Maple," "All Or Nothing At All," "Victory Jump" and "She's the Sweetheart of the Service." Solists include Trumpeter Shorty Chertock, Henry Russell and the Glee Club, and Donna and her Don Juans.

"SALUTE TO YOUTH"

Lt. Ruth G. Miss Haskell, now stationed at Fort Dix, N. J., will appear on the program in person, to tell how she injured her back in a fall on a wet stairway aboard an invasion ship, and concealed the injury until she collapsed, four months later. Musically, the program features Nadine Conner, Metropolitan Opera soprano, and Raymond Paige's "Young Americans" orchestra in a variety of selections, including "From the Land of the Sky Blue Water" and "Oh, What a Beautiful Morning," both sung by Miss Conner; "Blue Skies," "Whispering" and "I've Got Sixpence," by the orchestra and chorus. Alec Templeton's improvisations and impressions, and the singing of an American Legion chorus, broadcasting from Oklahoma, round out this varied program.

The pianist-satirist first plays Ravel's "Empress of the Pagodas," and returns later in the show to improvise on themes suggested by members of the studio audience, and to give his impressions of popular French and American crooners. RADIO NEWS NOTES

There's no rest for Dinah Shore. The popular singer starts a new series on CBS September 30 and also begins a new picture, "Three Cheers for the Boys," in which Freddy Slack's orchestra will supply the music.

Another Barrymore is headed for radio. It's Diana Barrymore, niece of Lionel, starred in "The Mayor of the Town" over CBS Wednesdays. Diana is a principal in "From This Day Forward," with Bramwell Fletcher, Gene Lockhart and Frank Tours, now being offered for Fall sponsorship.

Phil Spitalny and his "Hour of Charm" all-girl choir sang one of the two favorite hymns of American service men, when they dedicated "Rock of Ages" to Camp Chaffee, Ark., Sunday. The hymn was composed during the 18th century by Augustus Montague Toplady, and is probably the most widely popular hymn in the English language.

Obviously the most excited and enthusiastic Frank Sinatra fan at the opening Burns and Allen broadcast of the season was Louise Erickson, the 16-year-old miss who plays the title role in "A Date with Judy." Louise arrived early at the studio, securing a seat front row center and, after the broadcast, tore backstage to corner her hero for conversation and an autograph.

Marion Loveridge, 13-year-old singing star of Olvio's program, prefers to attend the city's public school in her neighborhood, rather than the professional children's school which most youngsters attend. Marion's parents prefer that she grow up with no more advantages than her Bay Ridge, Brooklyn, neighbors.

Solicitors Chosen To Boost Bond Buying In Industries

CITY FACTORIES SEEK BRIGHTER RECORD IN WAR

Nearly All Employes Now Contribute Regularly To U. S. Finances

GREATER TOTAL SOUGHT

Move Taken In Connection With Local Drive To Raise $1,131,000

Circleville's industries, already making a splendid contribution to the war effort, took on an additional job Monday when Clark Will, chairman of the Third War Loan Drive, announced appointment of Industrial Solicitation Employees Committees for four of the city's larger plants.

Nearly all employes of all four of the factories listed are already having money deducted from their pay envelopes and pay checks each month for purchase of War Bonds, but many of the workers have indicated their willingness to make further contributions.

Committees Chosen

Committees which will operate include:

Eshelman Mill: Mack G. Moore, chairman; Leslie C. Rihl, James M. Binkley, Harold Goldsberry, Donald Reisinger and Harry Hitchcock.

Silex Co.: George W. Lane, chairman; Miss Dorothy Glick and Mrs. Mabel Ernst.

Purina Co.: Eldred Cayce, chairman; Robert Norpeth, Lee Cook and Harold Allen.

Container Corporation: Norbert Cochran, chairman; H. Linden Baughman, F. E. Wantz, Arthur F. McCoard and John P. Moore.

Each employe in each of the four plants will be solicited to buy an extra bond during the Third War Loan drive.

Campaign Advances

Mr. Will had no additional total to report Monday in the campaign, although he indicated the campaign is moving along at a faster pace than early last week when the county total lagged far behind other south central Ohio counties. More solicitors have been going to work, and more persons have been buying bonds.

The county's goal in the drive is $1,131,000.

Pickaway county was given credit Monday by the Ohio treasury for $28,500 in War Bonds when Don H. Ebricht, treasurer, invested $15,000,000 in certificates of indebtedness through the Federal Reserve bank at Cleveland.

"As in the past," Mr. Ebricht wrote to Mr. Will, "we have directed that credit for this purchase be distributed to the 88 counties in the state on a proportionate share. Your county is to be credited with $28,500 and you will undoubtedly receive further advice of this credit from the War Finance committee for Ohio."

The treasury announced a new award Monday for employes of retail stores who sell $200 or more Series E bonds during the campaign.

Citation cards are made available to all retail houses which sell Bonds and Stamps. The cards are to be issued at once to clerks who have already sold $200 in Bonds in the Third Drive.

Soil Conservation To Be Discussed Before Granges, Farm Bureau

A concerted effort is being mapped by County Extension Agent F. K. Blair for the next 60 days during which Pickaway county landowners in all districts of the county will be provided information concerning the proposal to establish the county as a soil conservation district.

Mr. Blair said Monday that persons interested in the soil conservation plan will appear before Granges and Farm Bureau Advisory Councils as the best means of contacting landowners to inform them

City Policemen Kept Busy Over Week-End By Drunks, Disorderlies

Police department did a land office business during the week end with many persons hauled into court for investigation and on charges of being intoxicated and disorderly. Nearly a dozen persons remained in jail Monday awaiting hearings before Mayor Ben H. Gordon.

The series of arrests started Saturday evening and continued until 2 a. m. Monday.

A police visit to a 126½ West Main street apartment at 1:30 a. m. Monday sent Jerry Smallwood, 30; Margaret Hart, 17; Ruth Dowden, 21, and Gladys Allen, 22, to jail for investigation. Two Lockbourne air base soldiers,
